At 4½ she's reading 3rd grade books

*a child prodigy?

can be reading

Prove it to yourself . . . with this 10 day free trial!

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child. At age four-and-a-half, she's already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library.

She reads books many third graders find "hard going." Yet she won't enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with "Listen and Learn with Phonics"—a reading kit that actually makes reading fun.

"Listen and Learn with Phonics" was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing, by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinatingly eager young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on a cassette, sees them in a book and then repeats them. This makes an absorbing game of better reading — with amazing results.

For example: Slow or average readers show sudden—often spectacular—improvement in reading and spelling. Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age level. Young "pre-schoolers" actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective method.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

I am tremendously pleased. My 5-year old is reading very well and I plan to begin with my 4-year old. I am so glad I invested in this set. Judy I. Gay, Stow, Oh.

Last year I taught grades 1-4. I had a 6-year old boy who came to 1st grade reading 6th-grade words. His father had taught him at home using your set. The father donated the set to our school. I was thrilled because some of the children need a lot of extra help with reading and phonics.

Janet Griffin, Triangle School, Apex, N.C.

What a happy Grandma I am! Since I ordered a Phonics set and had it mailed to my granddaughter, Kim, and her 6-year old sister, they are both making A's in school. Mrs. Clarence Sparks, Clearwater, Fl.

Here's everything you need to teach your child reading, with guaranteed results. In addition to colorful learning booklets, you receive educational games and cassettes.

Four years ago, I ordered your Phonics set for my 2 children; then, ages 4 and 5. They are now top readers and spellers in their class.

Mrs. Nancy Cook, Santa Paula, Ca.

Your company has the best teaching method I have found. Thank you for offering such quality educational materials.

Mrs. Joseph Vandebush, Green Bay, Wisc.

SPECIAL PARENTS' GUIDE

A 32-page Parents' Guide is included. However, you don't need special teaching skills to use this program. Nor do you need any special knowledge of phonics.

In fact, your child needs no special supervision on your part. This set is so simple, so fascinating, children can learn "on their own" without help.

Results are so dramatic, the publishers will make the complete kit available to your child with an equally dramatic FREE trial and guarantee.

COMMENTS

"WHO'S THAT COMIN' THROUGH THE DOOR?"

We are so glad that you showed A Prairie Home Companion with Garrison Keillor on The Disney Channel. My husband listened to it on the radio for years. He would not miss one Saturday night of it. It was a very entertaining program, one that we would not have been afraid for our grandchildren to watch. Thank you for showing this program.

Mrs. Waymon Genson
Syracuse, NY

I wish to compliment The Disney Channel on its coverage of A Prairie Home Companion. The decision to do so prompted me to subscribe and I have been very pleased so far. I enjoy not only Garrison Keillor but also a good portion of the musical guests.

As for The Disney Channel itself, I would like to see more musical specials. For example, the Roger Whittaker concert shown in March. I think other viewers would appreciate these concerts also.

While watching the first Prairie Home broadcast, I was pleasantly surprised to see a guitarist named Leo Kottke perform. I have seen him in concert in my area, and he always leaves the audience amazed and begging for more. If he were to appear on The Disney Channel, I know the response would be overwhelming.

Daniel Comeau
Anoka, MN

Thank you for your suggestions—we'll pass them along. Also, the special Roger Whittaker in Kenya will air again in November, and A Prairie Home Companion will encore early next year.

FROM COAST TO COAST, THE STORY OF ANNE SHIRLEY TOUCHES SUBSCRIBERS

I just have to write and tell you how very much I loved Anne of Green Gables. Just the nicest story...and the photography was so good. I felt that I was really "there." (And how I would love a teacher like that for my grandchildren.)

I enjoyed The Last Hurrah, too... In fact, all your shows are good. The variety is excellent. It is so hard to find decent videos anywhere or anything decent on regular TV. The best investment we have made is getting The Disney Channel. We even bought it for one set of grandchildren, too. Two others bought their own! What a blessing in this weary world that decency and good movies still abound.

Mrs. George DeCormier
Manchester, CT

We sure enjoy The Disney Channel and appreciate the efforts you make in providing good and wholesome family entertainment. We especially love Anne of Green Gables and Anne of Avonlea. We could hardly wait for the next episode.

The Willis Family
San Diego, CA

We've told countless friends and neighbors to be certain and see Anne of Green Gables and Anne of Avonlea. It struck me that we should also simply thank you. It was the most memorable family experience we shared in some time—pure nostalgia for my mother who is sharing all of her memories with her granddaughter.

READ, WRITE, AND DRAW WITH VINCENT PRICE

I just wanted to take one minute to let you know my entire family has loved the talented Vincent Price for years! We are thrilled to see him on The Disney Channel. I wish my children could see more of him. He's a precious and genuine talent!

Evelyn Saban
Brookfield, IL

For our new subscribers, Mr. Price is the host and narrator of Read, Write, and Draw. Every month The Disney Channel Magazine presents the beginning of a short story for our young viewers; they in turn finish the story and illustrate it. Subscribers—young and old—can watch Mr. Price reading a selection of our young readers' stories and presenting their illustrations. Read, Write, and Draw appears every weekday afternoon before Donald Duck Presents as well as after KidScene. On weekends, it appears after The Edison Twins on Saturday and after The Mouse Factory on Sunday.

RICK NELSON TRIBUTE

I am an avid watcher of The Disney Channel and a faithful viewer of both The Adventures of and The Best of Ozzie and Harriet. I read an article in The Cleveland Plain Dealer that mentioned that The Disney Channel was presenting David Nelson's A Brother Remembers and 100 episodes of Ozzie and Harriet. Can you tell me when the programs will be aired?

Barbara Pateras
Parma, OH

Rick Nelson: A Brother Remembers and The Missing Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet—100 episodes not seen on television since 1966—will be airing on The Disney Channel this fall.

The Disney Channel welcomes letters and pictures from viewers. Robert Foxworth

Robert Foxworth, who appears on The Disney Channel in Treasure of Matecumbe (see page 47), is best known to television audiences as wine-maker Chase Gioberti in CBS' series Falcon Crest. This past season was Foxworth's last with the show. Trained in the theater, Foxworth intends to pursue other projects. This summer, for example, he appeared at San Diego, California's acclaimed Old Globe Theater. Foxworth portrayed Mark Antony, the Roman general whose romantic obsession with the "serpent of the Nile" leads to tragedy in Shakespeare's Antony and Cleopatra.

One of Foxworth's co-stars in Treasure of Matecumbe is Peter Ustinov, the celebrated English actor/playwright/wit. The filming of the Disney adventure story will long remain in Ustinov's memory—particularly the stunning hurricane sequence near the movie's climax.

Peter Ustinov

"I was doing the hurricane sequence in the picture, which is about gold hunters in the Florida Keys just after the Civil War," Ustinov says. As the home-made hurricane began, Ustinov discovered that "my feet had sunk into the sand. When I was hit by a few hundred gallons of water, I couldn't move. I did an elegant curtsy and crumpled with torn ligaments in my left ankle. I was off the picture and in a plaster cast for five weeks."

William Katt plays a sports writer on safari with his zoologist wife in the film Baby (see page 40). The childless couple—career demands and opportunities have taken precedence over raising a family—become the surrogate parents of a prehistoric relic: a baby brontosaurus. Off-screen, Katt is in fact the devoted father of two sons.

Since his acting career requires frequent absences from the family hearth, Katt finds that "very often I find myself parenting long distance." In fact, one son once called him while he was filming in Africa. The reason: Mom had vetoed a request concerning dessert. Could Dad be persuaded to overturn her decision? The answer was no. When on location, Katt stays in touch by phoning home at least twice a week "so they feel like they still have a father." Katt admits, "It's very difficult being away."

William Katt

Patrick McGoochan portrays an evil scientist in Baby. A Disney alumnus (The Three Lives of Thomasina, The Scarecrow of Romney Marsh), the American-born but Irish-reared actor is also a writer. His surrealistic TV series The Prisoner, a cult hit from the late 1960s, was a typical McGoochan creation.

McGoochan starts his day at 3:00 a.m.—when he rises to compose poetry. "I don't call it poetry," he demurs. "I call it scrambled words. It's just a positive way to start the day."

Patrick McGoochan

In An American in Paris (see page 45), Gene Kelly displayed not only his formidable skills as a dancer but also his genius as a choreographer, for which he received an Academy Award. Kelly is one of the two greatest dancers in the history of American entertainment—the other being the late Fred Astaire.

Gene Kelly

While friends of McGoochan have been gifted with collections of his verse, he resists any wider publication: "They're all sort of obscure and personal," he insists.

Kelly once described himself and Astaire as "a fraternity of two," though he observed that their dancing styles were contrary: "My style is strong, wide open, and bravura," Kelly pointed out. "His was intimate, cool, and easy."

Annette O'Toole

In the charming film Bridge to Terabithia (based on a Newbery Award-winning book for young people written by Katherine Paterson), Annette O'Toole plays a sympathetic and understanding school teacher (see page 37). If O'Toole's name seems unfamiliar, her face won't. The gifted young actress has appeared in such diverse roles as Tammy Wynette in CBS' TV movie Stand by Your Man and as Clark Kent's old flame Lana Lang in Superman III.

O'Toole originally hoped to become a dancer. Regarding her decision to switch professions, she says, "Acting is a marvelous career. It can go on forever and forever, unlike dancing, where you reach a physical peak. As an actress gets older, there are always more interesting roles to play."

Ben Kingsley stars opposite Glenda Jackson in Turtle Diary (see page 42). He portrays the 40ish clerk of a bookstore who, having reached a dead end in his life, finds himself restored through his efforts to aid Ms. Jackson in freeing two sea turtles from captivity.

"I passionately wanted to do the film," he explains. "When I was 20, I dreaded being 40. Now I'm past 40, and life's fantastic. This story was the reverse of that. It's about a man who had reached my age and had stopped absolutely dead. It had a very strong resonance for me. Just for one day, these were the people I want to be."

★ COLLEGE

Sixteen college teams compete for the National as College Bowl returns to tele

What's it like to match wits with 16 different teams, composed of the nation's brightest college scholars, in the ultimate varsity sport of the mind? Here's a sampler—your first "toss-up" question. The first college football bowl game was played in 1902. For 10 points—which bowl was it? If you answered The Rose Bowl, you're correct. Now you've earned a bonus question: Under Chief Justice John Marshall, the 1803 Supreme Court decision in Marbury vs. Madison established a precedent for the relationship between the Court and Congress. For 20 points—what was that precedent?

If the answer to that question sent you scurrying for an encyclopedia—it's the principle of judicial review of congressional legislation—keep in mind that those are practice questions. Subscribers of all ages will have the opportunity of watching college teams compete in answering the real questions (and challenging themselves at home to answer the questions given the panelists) starting Sunday, September 13, when College Bowl '87 premieres on The Disney Channel at 5:30 p.m. This weekly series of 15 shows is a new, contemporary version of College Bowl, the critically acclaimed and award-winning quiz show, which aired on network television from 1959 to 1970. The moderator of College Bowl '87—the "man with the questions"—is Dick Cavett.

College Bowl '87 is produced by Richard Reid. His father Don Reid is one of the three individuals who created the original series. Thus it comes as no surprise that College Bowl '87 recreates the spirit and excitement of the old show in an updated format.

There will be one slight difference for those in the audience who recall the original College Bowl '87 is a single elimination

The two winners of the semi-finals will meet head-to-head in the final competition to select the National Champion. (Turn to page 13 for a helpful "College Bowl Scorecard," which illustrates the tournament format and gives the team matchups, game dates and times.)

For the competing teams, the stakes are high. In addition to representing their respective alma maters, the varsity scholars are also competing for academic scholarships for their school—a total of $34,000. The team winning the tournament also receives a handsome silver cup, commemorating their victory. It all makes for a series of fast-paced half-hours that are exhilarating, entertaining, and educational.

College Bowl History

Just how exciting is College Bowl? Consider the fact that it's the most widely played game on college campuses after organized sports like football, baseball, and basketball. In fact, since College Bowl's beginnings, it's always been on the campus scene.

The program began back in 1953 as a radio show. It made its move to television in 1959, where it appeared on the CBS network. College Bowl was moderated by Allen I. Ludden, the first "man with the questions." The show was an immediate popular and critical hit, and the awards began to roll in.

The team of varsity scholars that wins the College Bowl '87 National Championship will receive this handsome silver trophy.

tournament. The 16 competing teams have all been selected through a nationwide series of College Bowl tournaments. Thus the first eight games—a complete game is played every Sunday—determine the eight quarter-finalists. The four winners of those contests advance to the semi-finals.

In addition to winning an Emmy, College Bowl also received the George Foster Peabody Award in 1960 as "the outstanding television youth program." The United States Congress cited College Bowl as representing "television at its best." The show's excellence was even recognized at the presidential level. Three presidential citations were made—on air—to College Bowl by Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy, and Johnson.

In 1962, Robert Earle succeeded Allen Ludden as the man with the questions as College Bowl moved to the NBC network. Earle hosted College Bowl until it left the airwaves in 1970. But though the program was no longer seen on national television, its popularity refused to die.

College campuses had organized impromptu intramural contests throughout College Bowl's run on TV. As interest in the game continued on college campuses after 1970, Don Reid, one of the show's original producers, organized and distributed the game to campuses nationwide. College Bowl lived again, as schools competed to reach regional tournaments, hoping to advance to the National Championships. Every year 50,000 individual matches are held just to determine the regional champions.

How College Bowl Is Played

College Bowl is similar to football—both games are played in two halves. A half in College Bowl consists of 10 minutes. The winner of the game is the team that accumulates the most points by the time the buzzer sounds, announcing the end of the second half.

To score points, the teams must correctly answer questions drawn from the entire spectrum of the Liberal Arts curriculum. The subject matter can range from mathematics to politics, from science to art; music, literature—and yes, sports.

There are two different types of questions. Remember the question about college football bowl games? That was a "toss-up" question. Toss-ups, worth 10 points, are presented to both teams. Any of the eight panelists can win the right to answer by hitting his or her buzzer. (Don Reid, on the original College Bowl, was the first person to utilize a "lock-out" box, which sorts out the contestants and identifies the one who actually rang first.)

Of course, team members who think they know the answer can interrupt before the question has been read completely. But if the player doesn't have the correct answer, his team is penalized five points. The opposing team is then given the toss-up question to answer.

Having clinched 10 points, a team can add to its score through answering bonus questions. Bonus questions range from a total of 20 to 30 points. They are frequently multiple questions: one, for example, might demand five correct answers, each answer being worth five points apiece.

Bonus questions are also team questions. The four members can confer on the answer. Though any team player can give the response, only the team captain can do so if there is dissent over the answer.

Thus, in playing College Bowl, a team can add as many as 40 points to its score in very little time—or have five points subtracted from the total. Needless to say, that keeps the varsity scholars on their toes and the atmosphere crackling.

The Strategy of the Game

It should be emphasized that College Bowl '87 is a game that demands the quick and clear recall of facts. It is not an indication of total academic achievement. While it calls upon its players to draw from their reservoir of general and specific knowl-will win or go down to defeat.

Take the toss-up questions, for example. Interrupting the question to reply with the answer can get the jump on the other team—vital when you remember that such a tactic can quickly add 40 points to the score. The risk has to be balanced against the consequences—a five-point penalty. Team captains must know the strengths and weaknesses of their team players—and one and all have got to keep a cool head in the heat of the game.

In the bonus questions, good teamwork is paramount. That's easily said when every member of the team agrees on the answer—even if they're wrong. But bonus responses. The team captain must make a decision: Who is right?

These aspects of the game require discipline, level-headedness, and the ability to come to a quick decision. There's another factor in the game: the clock.

In a close contest, the ability to manipulate the clock can mean the difference between winning or losing. Here's one example, which occurred on the old College Bowl during the 1966-67 season:

It was Kentucky versus Colorado, one of that year's most fiercely fought matches. Colorado protected their lead in the game's final seconds by deliberately giving an incorrect response to a toss-up. They took a five-point penalty. But Colorado used up the clock, securing the win.

Louisiana State University and Georgetown University will square off in their first round match on September 20 at 5:30 p.m.

Always ANNETTE

A special film festival honors one of Disney's greatest stars.

Annette Funicello—from her first appearance as a fresh-faced youngster on the Mickey Mouse Club in 1955, she evoked the essence of Disney. In the mid-1960s she was Disney's all-American ingenue, the archetypal “girl next door” in such comedies as The Misadventures of Merlin Jones. Today, Annette and Hayley Mills remain Disney's two most popular and beloved stars.

Beginning the week of August 16, subscribers of The Disney Channel can relive Annette Funicello's remarkable Disney career with Always Annette. This exclusive film festival follows Annette from the early days on the Mickey Mouse Club through a selection of her finest films (including Lots of Luck, an original 1985 Disney Channel production and her last Disney picture). The festival also features a personal television interview and three classic episodes of Zorro. (See page 17 for a complete listing of programs and dates.)

Annette was born in 1942 in Utica, New York. Her family moved to California, to Los Angeles's San Fernando Valley, when she was four. A year later Annette was taking dance lessons; at nine she had won a beauty contest. But the story of her career really begins in 1955.

Annette was dancing in a school recital at Burbank's Starlight Bowl. Unbeknownst to anyone, Walt Disney was in the audience. At the time he was completing casting for his first television series, Mickey Mouse Club.

“I didn't know Mr. Disney was there,” Annette recalled. “He just came in unannounced. He saw me dance, and called my dancing teacher and said, ‘We're holding interviews. Would you please bring her to the studio?’ And that's how it came to be. They were looking for 24 boys and girls. I was the 24th.”

Walt Disney had discerned a promising talent in his young charge. After all, he had auditioned over 6,000 boys and girls for the Mickey Mouse Club. Disney's hunch about Annette was soon confirmed as she became the most popular Mouseketeer. She received ten times more mail than her cohorts on the show—an astronomical 6,000 letters a month.

By 1959, when the Mickey Mouse Club disbanded, Annette was a bona fide star. She appeared in a Disney film, on other Disney TV series (including the three episodes of Zorro which are included in the Always Annette Festival), and had launched a recording career.

“Of all the Mouseketeers, I was the one who remained under contract to Mr. Disney for years and years,” Annette said. “He was the dearest, kindest person, and truly like a second father to me. He was a kid at heart.”

Escapade in Florence (co-starring Tommy Kirk), a 1962 production for the Disney series The Wonderful World of Color, marked the end of the first phase of Annette's career with the Studio. Feeling that Annette had outgrown juvenile roles, Walt Disney loaned her to another studio for a seminal '60s film: Beach Party with Frankie Avalon. In this sun-washed, seaside cornball teen comedy, the brunette Annette was the only actress not to appear in a bikini.

“That's when the famous story of never showing my navel arose,” Annette remembered with amusement. “I was on loan-out from The Disney Studios, and Mr. Disney came (continued on the following page)

Annette has fond memories of her past association with Disney: “I was so happy and caught up in the work I was doing. I was working for a wonderful man—Walt Disney.” Annette's original pair of mouse ears—now in bronze—still grace her home.

to me one day and said, 'Annette, I have a favor to ask of you. I know all the girls are wearing bikinis, but you have an image to uphold. I would appreciate it if you would wear a one-piece suit.' I did—and I never regretted it."

Annette returned to The Disney Studios in 1964 for The Misadventures of Merlin Jones, starring again with Tommy Kirk. The movie's success spawned a sequel, The Monkey's Uncle. But the '60s were moving toward a watershed in American society. Times were rapidly changing. The two comedies were to mark the last appearance of both Annette and Tommy Kirk in Disney theatrical films.

Annette's personal life was also changing, with marriage and motherhood moving to the fore. "I chose not to act on a steady basis," Annette explained recently. "I have three children. After each child was born, I gave up the business for several years, slowly getting back into it each time."

During that period, Annette did grace several television programs from The Walt Disney Studios. Included in the Always Annette Festival are her appearances on The Mouse Factory and the 1980 Mouseketeer Reunion. In 1985, she teamed up with comedian Martin Mull for the original Disney Channel production, Lots of Luck.

This summer also sees Annette return to another famous scene from her past with the theatrical release of Back to the Beach, which reunites Annette and Frankie Avalon onscreen. The two former beach party stars play a married couple whose children's antics at the beach lure the two back to their old haunts.

"People have asked me for years when Frankie and I were going to do another film together," Annette explained. "The surfing scene is on the upswing, and people like to walk down memory lane. Nostalgia is an important part of our lives. It's also natural for me to play a mother with a teenage son and daughter."

Nostalgia—it is an important part of our lives. With the debut of the Always Annette Film Festival, subscribers of The Disney Channel can relive their fond memories of Annette Funicello—and introduce their children to her Disney films and television programs.

Of her past association with Disney, the former Mouseketeer, whose original mouse ears, now bronzed, are on display in her Los Angeles home, recalled her own fond memories: "I was so happy and caught up in the work I was doing. I was working for a wonderful man—Walt Disney. Few got the chance to do that." ♥

The young Annette as one of the Mouseketeers on the Mickey Mouse Club. Disney discovered her at a school dance recital. "I didn't know Mr. Disney was there," she recalled. "He just came in unannounced. He saw me dance, and called my dancing teacher, and said, 'We're holding interviews.' They were looking for 24 boys and girls. I was the 24th." She quickly became the most popular Mouseketeer of all.

A new generation of gifted performers are reviving America's original variety show —and giving it a new twist.

NEW VAUDEVILLIANS TOO

In 1881 entrepreneur Tony Pastor opened the first theater in New York City dedicated to a new form of entertainment, vaudeville. An immediate success with the public, the shows consisted of a variety of acts, ranging from jugglers and comedians to singers and magicians. For the next half-century, vaudeville reigned supreme both as the country's favorite family entertainment and as a proving ground for the nation's premiere performers.

In the last several years a new generation of entertainers have emerged to spark a remarkable revival of this original American variety show. Following on the heels of last year's Ace Award-nominated special The New Vaudevillians, The Disney Channel will once again play host to some of today's most hilarious and exciting variety artists on New Vaudevillians Too, which has its prime-time premiere Tuesday, September 8 at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time). (Ace Awards are Awards for Cable Excellence, presented by the National Association of Cable Programming.)

New Vaudevillians Too, produced exclusively for The Disney Channel, is a 60-minute non-stop feast of laughs and gasps served up in a traditional vaudeville format. The program was taped before a live audience in Santa Monica, California's historic Mayfair Theatre, which opened its doors as that city's first vaudeville house back in 1911.

Descended from traveling minstrel shows and similar forms of theater, vaudeville traditionally presented a bill of acts introduced by the evening's master of ceremonies. The host for New Vaudevillians Too is Ed Begley Jr., co-star of NBC's St. Elsewhere. Begley himself gets

New Vaudevillians Too presents a baker's dozen of today's brightest and wackiest young entertainers, assuring laughter and amazement for the entire family by combining many familiar elements with new surprises.

The trio known as The Mums, for example, instantly transform the theater into a circus big top with a spectacular high energy mix of juggling, magic, acrobatics, and music. Ventriloquist David Strassman, whose partner Chuck Wood yearns for his own solo act, adds an astonishingly unique twist to the age-old struggle between ventriloquists and their wooden sidekicks.

One trend which has emerged in the new vaudeville is adding comedy to other types of skills. Take one unicyclist with questionable balance, add one beautiful but nervous volunteer assistant from the audience, and try to juggle a sword, a flaming torch, and a sixteen-pound bowling ball. In the hands of Philip Wellford this odd recipe generates non-stop laughter. Or take magician John Carney whose wacky tricks always astonish, though they seldom turn out the way he hopes. No matter, he assures the audience, he has vowed to use his powers only for good.

New Vaudevillians Too also gives subscribers a chance to see the rare and unusual. Imago, the Theatre Mask Ensemble, adds elaborate masks and costumes to the skills of mime and dance to create wondrously strange creatures whose adventures tap imaginative flights of fancy unlike anything in the vaudeville of old. Also on hand is Woody Wiley, one of only a handful of musical glass players in the world. Wiley, who usually performs on the street corners of New Orleans, plays hauntingly beautiful melodies on the instrument. Glass playing actually dates back to the 17th century and was introduced to America by none other than Benjamin Franklin.

Vaudeville began to decline in the 1920's, when vaudeville houses were renovated to accommodate the new craze for "moving pictures." Vaudeville was declared a dying art. In truth, however, many of the greatest stars of the vaudeville stage, from W.C. Fields and Oliver Hardy to Jack Benny and Burns and Allen, simply adapted their skills to radio and film.

When television later took the country by storm, the variety show flourished again, though in a more spectacular form. The Ed Sullivan Show, for example, which aired from 1948 to 1971, presented acts ranging from the Bolshoi Ballet to the latest rock stars and served as one of the premiere showcases for up and coming talent. Many greats of the entertainment world made their television debuts on the show. Walt Disney was also featured in a special full-hour edition of the program in 1953.

Vaudeville gained a new lease on life in the 1960's, when performers who specialized in mime, juggling, and comedy routines took to the street corners of major American cities, like San Francisco. Old vaudeville routines were revived—and reshaped—for a new public. As a result, a new vaudeville tradition has evolved, with a younger generation of performers every bit as amazing as their predecessors. And audiences throughout the country are discovering that vaudeville, to paraphrase the song, is just as sweet the second time around. ♡

A REAL-LIFE ANNE OF GREEN GABLES

I watched Anne of Green Gables and can't wait to see Anne of Avonlea. I find myself almost exactly the same as Anne—imaginative and romantic. I also find my friend Jenny "playing the role" of Diana. We may only be 11 years old, but we have a lot of fun.

There is also a certain somebody at school who fits the role of Gilbert Blythe. I just wanted to thank you for giving the two miniseries and to let you know there is a real-life Gilbert, Anne, and Diana. I'm also going to read the "Anne" books.

The Cat Ate My Gysuit

By Paula Danziger

The Cat Ate My Gysuit is a great, and funny book.

It is about a girl our age. She has most of the problems most girls have at school and home. She wants to be liked by everyone, but most people don't really want to be around her because she is fat and has millions of freckles. But that's what she thinks until one day!

I suggest you read this book as soon as possible.

THE RACCOONS

New episodes of The Raccoons begin
Sunday, September 6 at 10:00 a.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

Read, Write, and Draw

This issue's selection of stories includes Miss Tray and The Birthday Party. The stories' beginnings, in italic, appeared in The Disney Channel Magazine, and their endings and illustrations were submitted by our readers. Other stories' endings are read by Vincent Price on The Disney Channel each afternoon at various times: weekdays before Donald Duck Presents and following KidScene, weekends following The Edison Twins on Saturdays, and following The Mouse Factory on Sundays.

THE BIRTHDAY PARTY

It was two weeks before Emily's birthday. Emily, Jason and Lee were in the school cafeteria, discussing Emily's birthday party. "Who are you inviting?" asked Lee.

"The two of you, of course," Emily replied. "And Mark, Amanda, Stuart, Rosie, Sandy and Carl."

"Carl?" Jason said. "But he's such a nerd."

"You're inviting him?" said Lee.

Emily looked at her two friends.

When she wrote invitations to her birthday party that evening, she did not make one for Carl.

Carl sat next to Emily in science class and they sometimes did science homework together.

The week of her birthday, Amanda stopped by Emily's desk. "I got your invitation," Amanda said. "I can come to your party."

Emily put her finger to her lips as if to make Amanda speak more quietly. But it was too late. Carl had heard.

Carl pressed his hands against the desk, "You always invite me, Emily!"

"I know but..."

"But I'm a nerd, right?"

"Yes, I mean no! I don't think so, although others might. You're really a good friend of mine. I really want you to come, but to another party for just you and me."

"Would you really do that for me?" Carl almost shouted. Emily's eyes sparkled and a friendly smile appeared. Carl felt happy all over, knowing that he wasn't as dumb as people thought.

MISS TRAY

Every summer Mary, Will and their parents spent the month of August in a cabin by a lake. Over the years the children had heard the stories about Miss Tray from other children who vacationed there. "She's a witch," one child had said. "I saw her looking for toadstools," said another. "I think she rides on a broom," said a third.

"Don't listen to those stories," Papa said. "She's just an old lady who lives alone," added Mama.

But the children weren't convinced. One day Mary said, "I dare you to go on her front porch." "I dare you back," said Will.

Miss Tray's cabin was not far from theirs. That afternoon they walked up the dirt road that led to Miss Tray's. The sky darkened with rain clouds. There was a rumble of thunder. Tall fir trees cast giant shadows.

Miss Tray's cabin suddenly came into view.

This made them start thinking. "I bet Papa's right, Will. She's probably a nice old lady."

"You're chicken!" exclaimed Will. "Mary is a chicken, Mary is a chicken!"

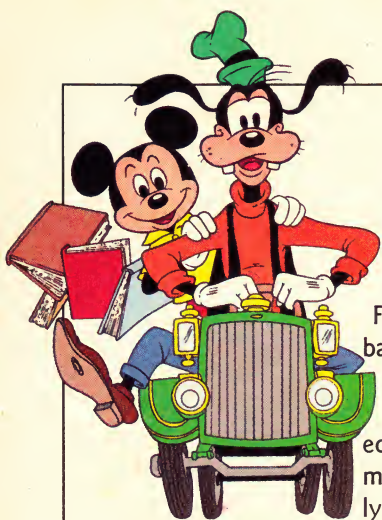

Ignoring Will's chanting, Mary started up the path toward Miss Tray's house. Will followed after her.

When they got to the door, Will knocked. The door opened and there stood an old lady. "Hi," she said. "My name is Willogene Tray. Nice to meet you."

The two children were relieved. They returned her welcome, and she offered them some milk and cookies.

FIND IT IN THE LIBRARY

Films and specials are often based on books. Five programs currently appearing on The Disney Channel were adapted from novels. The Disney movie Old Yeller was originally a best-selling novel written by Fred Gipson. Treasure of Matecumbe, a Disney adventure film, is adapted from Robert Lewis Taylor's best-selling historical novel A Journey to Matecumbe. The Red Badge of Courage is John Huston's film version of Stephen Crane's classic novella about a young man who experiences the horrors of the Civil War. The Bridge of Terabithia was originally a novel for young people. It was a winner of the 1978 Newbery Award, given yearly to the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children. It was written by Katherine Paterson. And How to Be a Perfect Person in Just Three Days is adapted from Stephen Manes tale, Be a Perfect Person in Just Three Days. All of these books are works best suited for older children.

Read, Write, and Draw

Kyle believes his friend Lucy is a genius—even if no one else does. But even Kyle is startled when Lucy transports them into the past to hunt dinosaurs. What will become of them? Can they get back?

Read the story's beginning, then make up an ending (100 words or less) and draw a picture to illustrate the tale. Send your story to the following address:

"Read, Write, and Draw"
The Disney Channel Magazine
P.O. Box 6439
Burbank, CA 91510-6439

A selection of stories will be read on The Disney Channel by actor Vincent Price, or published in The Disney Channel Magazine. (See page 25 for air times.)

THE TIME WARP

Kyle knew Lucy was a genius. She was 10, and had a lab in her garage. Most kids thought Lucy was crazy.

Not Kyle. One day he visited Lucy in her lab. A black box hummed on her work table.

"Want to go time traveling?" Lucy asked him.

Before he could say anything, Lucy picked up the black box and pressed a red button on its top. Electricity crackled and they were surrounded with smoke.

When the smoke cleared, Kyle noticed the air smelled strange. The garage was gone! There was a jungle and what looked like a weird rhinoceros!

"That's a triceratops," Lucy said, "C'mon, Kyle, we are going dinosaur hunting."

This activity is open to children 12 years and under. All submissions become the property of The Disney Channel and cannot be individually acknowledged or returned.

DINOS

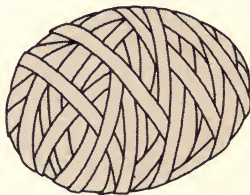

on The Disney Channel

There are several dinosaur programs on The Disney Channel in August and September (see page 40). Dinosaurs are intriguing creatures. Huge beasts, often the size of a building, they lived 100 million years ago. There were no humans then, of course, and the only animals recognizable to us today were turtles, lizards, and crocodiles.

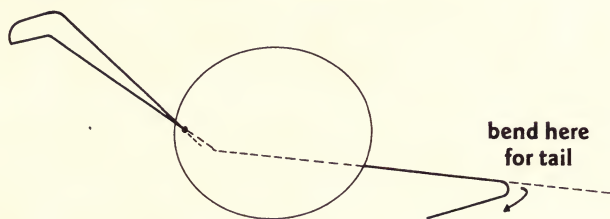

Here are directions for making your own dinosaur model. It will probably end up being about 10 or 12 inches high, from the table to the top of its head. If you stand a 3-inch-high miniature figure or animal next to it, you'll see how you would have compared in height with a dinosaur had you stood next to one.

1. To make the body:

- Blow up the balloon.
- Cut some newspaper into long strips 1" wide.
- Mix 3 cups flour with 2 cups water until all of the lumps are out of it. Add remaining water and mix with a spoon until smooth and creamy, like pancake batter.
- Wet several strips of newspaper at a time in the mixture.
- Wrap balloon with wet strips to completely cover balloon. Do this until you have 3 layers.
- Let wrapped balloon dry for several hours in the sun, or if the balloon is out of the sun, let it sit overnight.

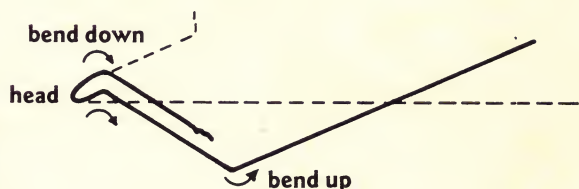

- Push the tail end of the hanger through the body until it comes out the other side. You will hear the balloon deflate.
- Push the neck wire into the first hole to secure neck and tail. Take pliers and carefully bend the tail so body can sit on table without rolling.

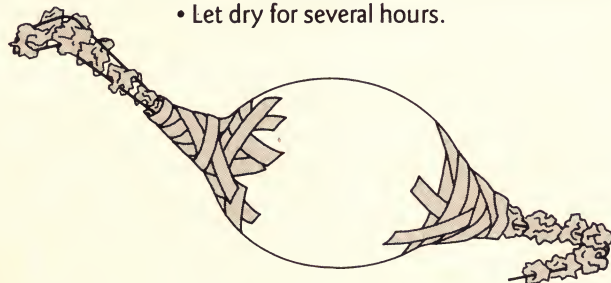

2. To shape the neck and tail:

- Using the pliers, untwist hanger, as shown. Straighten the tail end. Bend the head end of the hanger as indicated in illustration. This becomes the dinosaur's head and neck.

3. To stuff the neck and tail:

- Take scraps of newspaper and crush them into balls. Poke the tail wire through them. Wrap three layers of wet newspaper strips around the tail. Then wrap additional strips to connect the tail to the body.
- Crush newspaper scraps into smaller balls for the head and neck. Stuff the balls between the two wires. Wrap layers of wet newspaper strips, just like you did for the tail.
- Let dry for several hours.

4. Feet for the dinosaur:

- For the front feet make 2 large balls of newspaper, like the ones used for the tail. For the back feet use small balls like

and in your own room

TO MAKE YOUR MODEL YOU'LL NEED:

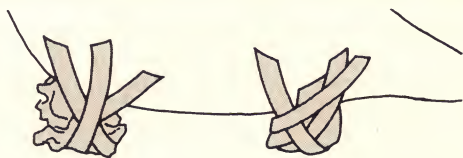

1 balloon
lots of newspaper
1 wire coat hanger
scissors
pliers

3 cups of flour
3 cups of water a large bowl
a spoon

poster paint
a paint brush

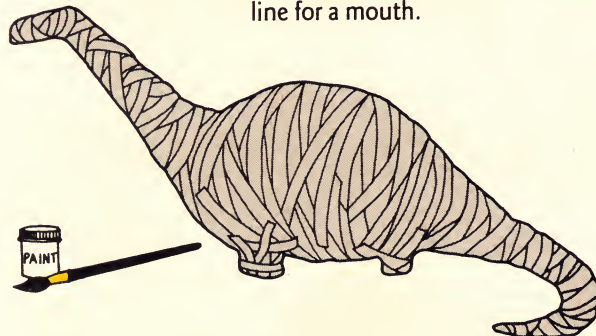

This project can be messy, so spread your work area with newspaper. Depending on your age or experience with papier mâché, you may need an adult's help.

the ones used in the head and neck. Cover each foot with layers of newspaper strips and attach foot to the body in the same way you covered the neck and tail. Let the dinosaur dry completely.

5. What color will your dinosaur be?

- Paint the top half of your prehistoric creature in whatever protective coloration or wild design you wish. Let the surface dry before turning over the beast to color the other side. Let that side dry.
- For the final life-like touch, use a contrasting color to paint small dots for eyes, lines above them for eyelids, and a thin line for a mouth.

OLD YELLER

More than the story of a dog and a family in Texas hill country, this Disney adventure film reveals an understanding of life itself.

Such success isn't surprising, though, considering that the film boasts Robert Stevenson as director, and a Disney cast, which includes Dorothy McGuire, Fess Parker, Tommy Kirk, and Kevin Corcoran. (1:23) Sept. 5, 9, 13, 17, 21

HOT MILLIONS

This incredible, and incredibly funny cast—Peter Ustinov, Maggie Smith, Karl Malden, Bob Newhart, Robert Morley, and Cesar Romero—set the comedic pace for a high-class swindling operation. (1:45) Aug. 30; Sept. 4, 8, 14, 19, 24

ELECTRIC GRANDMOTHER

Aunt Clara comes to care for a family with three children, but no one can stand her so they replace her with a grandmother—a robotic one, played by Maureen Stapleton. (0:50) Sept. 1, 6, 19

Advice For Youngsters—and Parents Too

HOME ALONE A KID'S GUIDE TO PLAYING IT SAFE WHEN ON THEIR OWN

Malcolm-Jamal Warner (The Cosby Show) and four other youngsters offer tips on how to be safe and unafraid when you're home alone. Dealing with strangers and handling emergencies are just two of the topics covered in this special for school-age children.

Sept. 10, 13, 17, 18, 19, 23

TOO SMART FOR STRANGERS

Younger children get good advice from the beloved Pooh Corner characters in this award-winning program. In a gentle, nonthreatening way, Pooh and his friends show children how to handle a variety of situations with strangers. Parents can watch, too, to help explain safety rules. cc Sept. 2, 12, 20, 25

THE RACCOONS

They're back, and in a permanent time slot—at 10:00 a.m. Saturdays and Sundays. The award-winning series continues with brand new episodes and some of your old favorites which tell of the raccoons' battle against the power-hungry aardvark Cyril Sneer, who sees their Evergreen Forest as a place to expand his empire.

TURTLE DIARY

Glenda Jackson and Ben Kingsley star in this touching film of two strangers who team up because of their common interest in the sea turtles that are confined to a small tank in the London Aquarium. They conspire to return the animals to the sea. (1:36)

COLLEGE BOWL '87 NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

After an absence of 17 years, College Bowl returns to television as an original Disney Channel series. Described as "the varsity sport of the mind," College Bowl '87 features 16 teams of 4 varsity scholars each in a single elimination tournament to determine a National Champion. In each game two teams compete to answer questions drawn from the collegiate curriculum. The questions range in subject matter from science to art, from politics and current events to music and literature.

Hosted by Dick Cavett, College Bowl '87 is a fast-paced half-hour that is as exciting as it is educational.

The series premieres Sunday, September 13 at 5:30 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time) and continues until December 20, when the winners of the final game clinch the Championship.

THE LITTLEST OUTLAW

This Disney feature, an exclusive premiere, was shot on location in Mexico. It's the tale of 10-year-old Pablito, whose stepfather is the horse trainer for a powerful Mexican general. The trainer uses a form of torture to produce jumping horses.

Pablito's favorite horse becomes terrified of jumping hurdles. When the animal refuses a jump and throws the general's daughter, the horse is to be destroyed. Instead, Pablito steals the beast and runs away, encountering some remarkable adventures. (1:15) Sept. 19, 22

THE HOBOKEN CHICKEN EMERGENCY

Peter Billingsley is young Arthur Bobowicz, who triggers a panic in Hoboken, New Jersey when he brings home a monster for Thanksgiving—a 266-lb. runaway chicken named Henrietta, "the best poultry value on Earth." Dick Van Patten is the town mayor; Gabe Kaplan a chicken "catcher." (1:00) Sept. 15, 20, 25

MY FRIEND FLICKA

Life on the Goosebar Ranch is sometimes hard, but always exciting for young Ken MacLaughlin and his mare Flicka. Monday evenings at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

KATY

Katy the curious caterpillar sets off to see what life in the wide world is all about. Her musical journey is given richness and depth through the use of sophisticated animation techniques. (1:21) Sept. 15, 21, 26

AN AMERICAN IN PARIS

Directed by Vincente Minelli, An American in Paris won eight Academy Awards in 1951. The title is, of course, taken from George Gershwin's famed orchestral suite; in fact the entire film is a veritable feast of the Gershwin Brothers' music and songs, from their earliest to their last.

The film has only four principals: Gene Kelly, Leslie Caron, Oscar Levant and Nina Foch. Kelly is the American art student torn between the elfin Caron and the wealthy Foch. The movie's 18-minute ballet sequence is some of the most brilliant dancing ever captured on film. (1:53) Sept. 13, 17, 21, 26

HEY THERE, IT'S YOGI BEAR

To get Yogi off his hands, Ranger Smith consigns Yogi to be shipped to the San Diego Zoo. Yogi outwits the ranger, but Cindy Bear, who has a crush on Yogi, believes he has been sent to California. She sets out to find him, only to fall into the clutches of the notorious Chizzling Brothers Circus. Yogi, realizing that he really does love Cindy, enlists the aid of his pint-sized bear pal Boo-Boo and sets out across the country to Cindy's rescue. (1:21) Sept. 20, 24

I have a still photo of a scene from In Search of the Castaways. However, when I watched the film, first in theaters and most recently on The Disney Channel, the exact scene in the photo wasn't in the movie. Why?

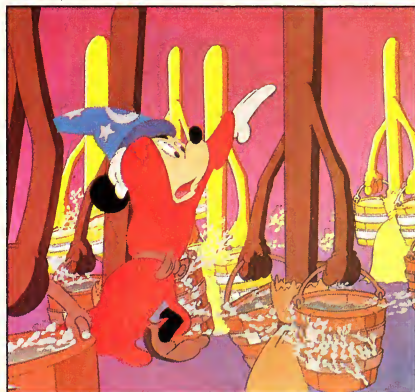

—C.M., Oxford, AL

My guess is that the photo is from a portion of a scene that ended up "on the cutting room floor." Then, too, comparing stills with film can be misleading. Almost all stills are shot by a still photographer who stands on the set near the movie camera. What the photographer shoots is rarely identical to the actual scene captured by the camera crew. On the other hand, blowing up a frame of movie film to serve as a still photograph isn't a satisfactory solution: the resulting photo is not of high quality.

Now that Fantasia has been rerecorded digitally, has the original version been preserved? Will it ever be available on videocassette?

—G.L., Mentor, OH

The original sound recording of Fantasia has been preserved by The Walt Disney Studios. However, a new sound track was recorded because the sound quality of the original had deteriorated. Fantasia was no longer the ultimate in sound reproduction, as Walt Disney had envisioned in 1940. Thus, if the film is ever released on videocassette, I imagine that it would feature the new digital recording.

Mickey Mouse as the "Scourcer's Apprentice" in Fantasia.

Is it true that Tinker Bell was modeled after Marilyn Monroe?

—B.B., Hayward, CA

While Marilyn Monroe was at the peak of her popularity in 1953, the year Peter Pan was released, the animators who worked on the film have assured me that Monroe was not the model for Tinker Bell. The actual model for the fairy was actress Margaret Kerry.

The actual model for Tinker Bell was actress Margaret Kerry.

What is the origin of the Buena Vista name, which has been used on many of the Disney enterprises?

—J.M., Pleasant Hill, CA

The Buena Vista name comes from the street on which the Disney Studio is located. The company moved to the Buena Vista site in 1940. When Disney set up its own film distribution company in 1953, Buena Vista was a logical choice for the company's title.

When I saw Almost Angels, I fell in love with one of the pieces of music sung by the choir. The scene was set in a church during Mass and featured a solo performance by a choir boy. Can you tell me the title of that music?

—M.L., Columbia, SC

We get many inquiries about that particular piece of music. It is "Omnes de Saba Venient," with words and music by Joseph Leopold, Elder von Eybler.

Disney Channel Trivia

- Janet Munro, who is featured in The Horsemasters (part of The Disney Channel's Always Annette Film Festival; see pages 15, 37 and 39), also starred in such Disney feature films as Darby O'Gill and the Little People, Third Man on the Mountain, and Swiss Family Robinson. Her promising career was cut short by her untimely death in 1972.
- When the Disney Studio selected a crop of kids for the new Mickey Mouse Club, which was taped in color beginning in 1977, only one of the Mouseketeers had previously starred in a Disney movie. That was Billy "Pop" Atmore, who had a featured role in Treasure of Matecumbe (see page 47).
- Tommy Kirk, who in 1964 created the title role of Merlin Jones in The Misadventures of Merlin Jones, was asked to continue with the character in The Monkey's Uncle, filmed the following year. These were the last of the many films that Tommy made with Disney.

In his last two film roles for Disney, Tommy Kirk played Merlin Jones.

- 1987 marks the 50th anniversary of the invention of the Disney multiplane camera. This special camera helped the Disney animation staff achieve a sense of depth and dimension to the backgrounds of their films.

AND THE CHILDREN SHALL LEAD

Differences, Racial and Other

When racial prejudice and strife tear apart a small Mississippi town during the '60s civil rights movement, it's the children who rise above the conflict and serve as models for the older townspeople in And The Children Shall Lead (see page 38 for air dates). The children refuse to let prejudice affect them; they play together as they always have, blacks and whites together. Their bond as children is stronger than their racial differences, and their unconscious wisdom is a lesson for people of all ages.

There are a number of good films and books about race, prejudice and getting along. On The Disney Channel in September is The Red Fury, a Disney Channel Discovery (page 43). Coming up in October are Sounder and Words by Heart, two films based on books (of the same titles) recommended for young readers. Also starting in October is Palmerstown, a 16-part series about life in a small Tennessee town, as seen through the eyes of two young friends, one black and one white. The children's friendship becomes an example for others.

Differences Within Families

Very young children may not be consciously aware of race, but they do experience differences and conflicts within their own families: sibling rivalry, or a difference in age or personality. Here, in the small arena of the family, children can learn, with help from their parents, to tolerate differences and to negotiate their own solutions to conflicts that arise.

How to get along with others is a popular subject among contemporary authors of children's books. Here are just a few of the many books for pre-school-age children that have to do with differences, conflict, and getting along.

- Making Friends
by Fred Rogers
- The Pain and the Great One
by Judy Blume
- The Berenstain Bears Get in a Fight
by Stan and Jan Berenstain

- On Mother's Lap
by Ann H. Scott
- Grandma and Grandpa Are Special People
by Barbara Kay Polland, PhD.

Books Can Help Children Cope By Nicki Weiss

Children frequently face situations that challenge their ability to cope. Their problems may stem from an event, such as the birth of a sibling, or family relationships to adoption, separation, divorce, alcoholism, illness, or death. Or a child may suffer from shyness, jealousy, anger, lack of self-confidence, or have trouble getting along with peers. Books provide an ideal way for children to come to terms with difficult emotions.

"For young children, the main way of expressing themselves is through their play," says Dr. Peggy Van Raalte, a clinical psychologist with practices in New York and New Jersey. "They often act out stories about their lives. They draw pictures about them. Tell stories. Books furnish a way for children to identify with characters who may resemble themselves in many ways. Because it's not directly them, it's less threatening." Colleen Colbert, M.S. in school psychology and early childhood, adds: "Like puppets, books are one step removed. There's safety in the distance from the child's reality. Books allow children to feel emotions they think may not be permissible in the actual relationship. In this way, conflicting emotions are more easily condoned."

Books also help children see that they're not alone in their predicament, that other people experience the same things. Says Colbert, "Books may validate their feelings; they see there are others who feel this way, too."

Books can be read and re-read. Dr. Van Raalte explains, "Such repetition enables a child to master a difficult situation while also providing solutions and resolutions to conflicts." Certain situations, such as a new baby at home, hospitalization, or even a first visit to the dentist, can be prepared for in advance. "A child can familiarize herself or himself with a situation ahead of time. It's like a trial run. He learns what to expect," says Van Raalte.

"Books can be an opener for verbalization, labeling the feelings," adds Colbert. "Through language they can gain control over the emotional issues."

Books can help a child open up his feelings to the parent, and books can assist the parent in opening communication with the child. A parent should be sure to read a book first, so that he or she can be prepared for the child's reactions to the book.

Sometimes parents worry that reading about a subject can induce feelings—will stir up negative emotions, put ideas in a child's head, or

"add fuel to the fire." "In fact, it's the opposite," says Colbert. "If a child identifies with a character or situation it's because he feels these things. If he doesn't identify with the character, emotions, or situation, he'll just move on. A child selectively attends to things that are meaningful to him or her."

How To Make Better Use of Your Local Library

Visit your local library. The children's librarian will be able to help you find and select the appropriate books for your child's needs. Through what librarians call a "reference interview," they consider the child's age and the specifics of the situation to then make recommendations.

You are also free to use the card catalogue in the library, which lists the books that the library holds. It is indexed according to subject as well as to title and author. Thus, you can find a complete listing of books on the topic you want under the subject heading.

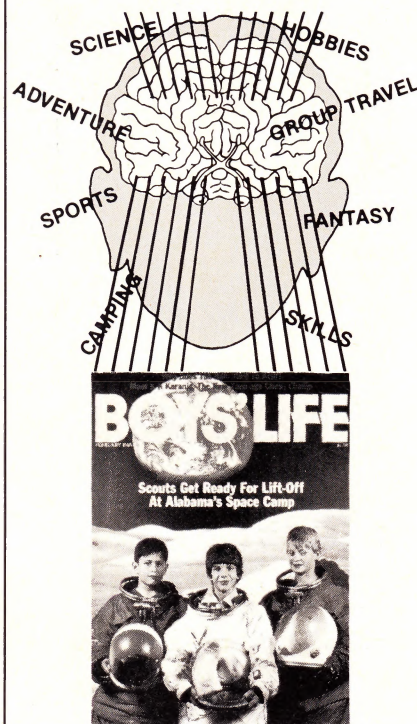

Another library source are reference books. Most libraries carry Bowker's Subject Guide to Children's Books in Print, an index which simply lists books according to subject. Some libraries carry Book Finder, which offers short summaries of the books it lists.

Visit your local bookstore, too. Some cities now have stores that specialize in children's books; booksellers here are particularly equipped to answer your questions and make recommendations. Stores specializing in children's books often have catalogues with order blanks inside for the parent who is eager to provide his or her child with new books but who is too busy to browse.

There are various bibliographies, professional magazines and review publications available for parents. The Children's Book Council publishes a brochure that lists such resources, entitled "Choosing a Child's Book." It is free if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Children's Book Council, Inc., 67 Irving Place, N.Y., N.Y. 10003. Libraries and bookstores may carry some of these resources too.

ED BEGLEY JR. Rollerskates to a Disney Family Reunion

Actor Ed Begley Jr. jumped at the chance to host New Vaudevillians Too (see page 20). "I love the whole carnival-like atmosphere that surrounds these performers, and I'm fascinated by people who spend their lives perfecting skills like juggling, magic, and ventriloquism," Begley admits. "This is also a long overdue reunion for me and the Disney family."

"When I was just starting out as an actor, I was cast in a series of films for Disney Studios, beginning with The Computer Wore Tennis Shoes," Begley recalls. "I learned a lot and have many wonderful memories of those days, so the opportunity to work on a project for The Disney Channel means a lot to me." For trivia buffs, The Computer Wore Tennis Shoes starred another up-and-coming young actor: Kurt Russell. Other Disney films Begley has appeared in are Now You See Him, Now You Don't and Superdad, both pictures again starring Kurt Russell.

Begley also confesses there is another reason why the opportunity to host New Vaudevillians Too was an easy decision. An avid rollerskater, he saw the show as a chance to perform his own specialty act on wheels for the first time on television, something this co-star of NBC's series St. Elsewhere has wanted to do for years.

"I love doing St. Elsewhere but it's a serious dramatic show. I guess the writers haven't figured out how to write in a rollerskating scene," Begley says. "I've certainly suggested it to them often enough," he adds with a smile.

16 DAYS OF GLORY This Stirring Film Receives a Rare Honor

This past June 18, 16 Days of Glory, Bud Greenspan's monumental and moving account of the 1984 Summer Olympics, was accorded a signal honor. A videocassette of the film, which had its world television premiere on The Disney Channel, was encased in a time capsule that was buried at the Los Angeles Coliseum, site of the Games' opening and closing ceremonies, as well as the scene of the track and field events.

Only one other time capsule is located at the Coliseum. It, too, contains memorabilia from the 1984 Summer Olympics. Both capsules are to be opened in 2034, the 50th anniversary of the Los Angeles Games.

"The 1984 Summer Olympics are among the proudest moments in the history of Los Angeles," declared Mayor Tom Bradley in a special proclamation. "The Disney Channel has done a great service by presenting 16 Days of Glory."

16 Days of Glory will return to The Disney Channel and be presented as a five-part miniseries, airing on Tuesday evenings at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time). This encore of 16 Days of Glory allows young and old to relive some of the brightest moments in the history of the Olympic Games.

DICK CAVETT The Host of College Bowl '87

I think the time is right for College Bowl '87," Dick Cavett says of The Disney Channel's exclusive new series (see page 10). A contemporary version of the long-running and award-winning College Bowl, the show pits 16 teams of four varsity scholars each in a tournament to select a College Bowl National Champion. "It's exciting and educational," observes Cavett, the wit and talk show personality who serves as the program's host.

As for the 64 college students who make up the 16 teams,

Cavett says, "These kids are certainly very impressive, very sharp. College Bowl demands the quick recall of facts—something which the Japanese, whose educational approach is highly regarded today, do very well at."

Cavett, who has a great interest in Japan, reflects, "Wouldn't the Japanese love this game? They'd play it so ferociously. I wish I could drop everything and learn the Japanese language intensively for two months. I could host the Japanese version of the show."

Ashley

We all take delight in watching children explore nature—especially when they discover a real treasure like a lovely butterfly—just as this little girl has done. These occasions allow us to relive the precious memories of our own childhood, with a fresh look at the world through a child's eyes.

This wondrous discovery by "Ashley" has been captured in lifelike color and detail by American artist Higgins Bond. With an almost photographic quality, Ms. Bond has depicted this adorable blonde toddler, crouched in a meadow of buttercups, observing her new friend.

Higgins Bond paints with a lifelike style, yet her image emphasizes the gentle quality of the little girl's adventure with a soft, dreamy background. And Ms. Bond has lovingly captured each detail of "Ashley's" presence, from the pink satin ribbon in her sunlit hair, to the tiny flower pattern on her dress.

Offered exclusively through The Hamilton Collection, "Ashley" premieres the Treasured Days Plate Collection: eight original works by Higgins Bond depicting toddlers discovering the wonders of nature. Each fine porcelain plate will feature a rim of gleaming 22K gold.

The edition is strictly limited to 14 firing days, and each plate will be numbered and accompanied by a matching numbered Certificate of Authenticity. As an owner of "Ashley," you are guaranteed the right—but never the obligation—to acquire all seven subsequent issues.

Furthermore, you may acquire this premiere plate at no risk. The Hamilton Collection 100% Buy-Back Guarantee assures that you may return any plate for a full refund, within 30 days of receipt.

Considering the continued popularity of fine, child-subject plate masterworks and the exceptional charm of "Ashley," market experts predict that this plate may well be one of the most sought-after issues of the year, resulting in a strong demand. Therefore, to avoid disappointment, you should order today.
